

Quick to stabilize Fairy Lake

Activity

Snowmobiling

Spent the day choking on DEEP snow in the meadows around Fairy Lake. Light to mod. showers all day with a brief lull around 330 which allowed a window of visibility into the upper elevation terrain: No slab avalanches observed which surprised me (hence the obs.), very minimal loose snow moving despite the impressive SWE totals. Some wind texture at upper elevations but the new snow appears to be settling out quickly in typical April fashion.
