

This natural avalanche was spotted by skiers in the south end of the Southern Madison Range. The weight of new snow this week has exposed slopes that contain weak facets near the ground. While these facets do not appear to be a widespread problem, they do exist on some slopes especially ones with a northerly aspect. Photo: A Whitmore

Advisory Region
Southern Madison

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Advisory for Sat Dec 8, 2012GNFAC Avalanche Advisory for Sun Dec 9, 2012

Southern Madison, 2012-12-08